Physical

- Create a physical booklet that holds the codes
- Create a pamphlet that translate common error codes to a solution
- Auto repair stores holds books that contains error code translation
- Auto repair display error codes numbers on their products
- Car companies put a book inside or another chapter in the user manual on error codes

Mobile

- Create an app that holds and display the codes
- Create an app that holds and display the codes that links to stores and websites
- Create an app that connects to the car via bluetooth that displays the errors on the phone
- Attach a device to the car in the OBD port that connects to phone
- Develop a device that connects the obd port to the mobile phone and auto reads the errors.

Car

- Display the code and their respective errors. on screen for a solution
- Develop a device that connects to the car and then displays on screen.
- Develop a device that connects to the OBD that displays on the windshield Infront of you as a reminder.
- Create a device that connects to the OBD port and stores error codes that can be reviewed on a later time.
- Create a device that when connected to the OBD port then taken out can be stored and reviewed later.

Online

- Create a website that when inputted a code and car will display the solution
- Create a website that display the solution with also helpful videos and links to purchase parts.
- Send error codes through online so it can be read on the pc.
- Create a website that holds all of the error codes in a library to be reviewed anytime
- Create a website that ask what the problem is accompanying with the codes to get a more detailed solution.

Other

- Train an text ai to help with understanding the error codes and finding a solution.
- Create a custom os with existing OBD readers that include having a solution and a readable problem on screen.
- Create a service that helps users find the solution to their car problems.
- Create videos that help solve common error problems in cars.
- Train an ai based on visual, sound and text based to help solve errors found in obd and around the car.